

Problem: Herpes Vulnerability

Background:

Normally a person that is affected by the Herpes Virus has several outbreaks during the year having painful blister in the mouse area or genital area. The infection can last for three weeks if not treated. Scientific study said that the reason the virus come back is because hide in the central nerve system and return when the condition are favorable to reproduce. In nature migration process is very common to see how the full population of species move from one location to other and return to the same place again when the condition are favorable to reproduce. Base on that natural behavior let apply the same rule to the Herpes virus. For this study only people with Active Outbreak can participate and report result.

Theory: When Herpes is in full outbreak completely move from the central nerve that was hiding to the surface attacking cell forming the blister then Is when is more vulnerable and successful to kill.
